THE TERRITORIES

P Denny has been chosen Chief of the Walla Walla Fire Department

An exchange advocates the introduction of rabbit culture into Washington Territory

Three fights per diem with two extra on Sundays are the minimum allowance at the present time in Tenino

It is reported that cruisers are making their appearance in vast numbers in the eastern portions of Washington Territory

The Teachers' Institute of Walla Walla county is called to meet at the court house in that county on Thursday the 15th of May

Mr Lo, of the Chehalis tribe has severed his tribal relations and made a homestead entry on 80 acres of land on Chehalis river

The Walla Walla, Touchet and Umatilla rivers are all said to be quite high at present, from the recent rains which melted the snow off the mountains considerably.

Another unfortunate individual, named James Stuart, has been adjudged insane at Olympia and ordered sent to the Asylum at Steilacoom His misfortune was the result of a fondness for poetry and ought to be a warning to about 100 people in Oregon who flood newspapers with what they call poetry.

Western Lodge No 6, I O O F, located in Olympia, has elected H G Struve and C G Howitt, as representatives to the Grand Lodge of Oregon, which commences at the Dalles on the 23d of May Olympia Lodge No 1, elected Past Grand Frank Henry and S W Percival as representatives to the same body

The introduction of the cheap labor on the railroad in Washington Territory has affected the sheep market in the vicinity of the camps Where chickens are scarce the average Celestial finds little difficulty in earning a livelihood at the expense of an adjacent sheep fold Farmers will have to enforce the dog law in that region

A Military Company of 42 members has been organized at Walla Walla The following persons were elected officers James McAuliff, Captain, Wm Stokes 1st Lieutenant, J F McLane, 2d Lieutenant, B W Griffin, Orderly Sergeant, Lb Taylor, 2d Sergeant A J Kay, 3d Sergeant, with a full set of Corporals The Company is called the Washington Guard

Everything is life, energy and activity at the railroad front near Tenino. Mr Montgomery, the Contractor has a force of about 600 men at work and will employ more, whenever the Company's engineers have more work laid out During the short time since operations were resumed there has been two miles grubbed and cleared and nearly a mile has already been graded, ready to receive the track.

Jack Williams, a light fingered scamp, who has until lately been working in the railroad gang at Tenino, picked on the wrong place for his operations when he selected Steilacoom On Tuesday last he stole a watch and chain from the pocket of a man asleep, and made off Inside of half an hour Sheriff Davisson was in hot pursuit, overtook the rascal up on the hill, threw him down, took away from him a loaded revolver, then the watch, and then locked him in jail.

H B Sinclair, Sheriff of Idaho county, I T., lost his life last week by falling or being thrown from a horse and rolling over a bluff about 200 feet The accident happened on Salmon river, about 200 miles above Slate creek An expressman named Schwartz was riding ahead, and being overtaken by Sinclair's horse and no rider, turned back and found the unfortunate man as above described. Sinclair breathed once or twice after being found, but was unable to speak

The Olympia Tribune of the 28th ult has the following "Yesterday morning, at Tacoma, a half breed named Mickell, or Mischell, for some reason unknown to us, struck a white man (whose name we could not learn) in the head with an ax, killing his victim almost immediately Mickell was taken into custody and put in confinement In about three hours, when all had been made ready, a crowd of citizens took the fellow out and lynched him, hanging him till dead" The Courier of the same date learns the murdered man was a young man of excellent character named James Steele, who has a brother in the same place, and other relatives in King county

From the Olympia Tribune On Saturday last an ecclesiastical council of the Congregational church assembled at this place, called to deliberate and advise on the propriety of organizing a church of that order in Olympia The Congregational churches of Portland, East Portland, Dalles and Seattle were represented by pastors as delegates The result was the advice of the council favorable to such an organization, and in accordance with that advice the organization took place yesterday. By the courtesy of the Presbyterian Church, the use of their house was granted for the organization ceremonies A sermon bearing on the subject was preached by Rev Dr Atkinson The articles of faith and the covenant were propounded by Rev T. Condon. The consecrating prayer was offered by Rev Mr. Damon. The right hand of fellowship was given to the new church by Rev Mr Easton, and the concluding address to the church was offered by Rev Mr Condon. The communion of the Lord's Supper was then observed and the exercises closed. The whole formed an impressive and interesting series of religious duties

THE ADVENTURES OF A HORSE —A singular story of a horse which passed safely through the war and the Commune was related in a suit just decided before the Civil Tribunal of the Seine He—or rather she, as it was a mare—was first called Bluette, and belonged to a dealer named Parcellier She was of noble race, and had gained prizes at agricultural shows When Paris was invested, and meat became scarce, she was requisitioned, and was destined for the slaughter house Fortunately M De Dyanne, an officer of the National Guard, remarked her, and saved her from that ignoble fate by taking her as a charger She was then renamed Patrie, and carried her master in his service During the confusion that reigned at the moment of the armistice she was stolen by her groom, but was recovered by her owner The Commune then next arrived, and the requisitions and acts of violence recommenced The master of Patrie was sought after as a hostage and was obliged to quit Paris in haste, leaving her concealed in a room on the ground floor of a house, with her feet tied up in cloths, so that the noise she made should not betray her hiding place M De Dyanne had not, however, forgotten his faithful animal His wife came into Paris and, by means of a passport for a horse obtained through the Turkish embassy, Patrie was saved for the third time A year later M Parcellier her first owner came forward and claimed her as his property The other refused to give her up showing that he had purchased her for 1 150 francs, when she was confirmed in December, 1870 although the execution of the contract had been postponed to the end of the war, and was made conditional on the mare surviving he besides proved to the court that but for him Patrie would long ago have ceased to exist as he had saved her from the slaughter man thieves, and the Commune The court now decided that she should remain the property of her benefactor on his paying the 1 150 francs to M Parcellier

A little Concord chap who lived next door to Ralph Waldo Emerson, was engaged one day in digging a hole by the roadside A worldly trifler passing by, asked him What are you digging after, little boy? With gravity he answered, "After the Infinite"

MORE INDIAN NEWS!

Still Further Indications of Trouble Ens of the Mountains

The Oregon Steam Navigation Company's operator at this city, received yesterday from the operator at Umatilla the following dispatch, which certainly looks as if the reports of pronounced positive troubles with the Indians in that section are not without foundation

UMATILLA, April 30 —Mr J M Lockwood has just arrived from the Lower Yakima to procure arms for himself and neighbors, as an old Indian, well known to be friendly to the whites passed through his neighborhood the day before he left, and informed Bird and Wackol that the Spokane and Priest Rapids Indians would fight and kill all the "Bostons," but that he (the Indian) did not know when, as the Indians at their Council would not allow him to be present, as he was too well known for his friendship with the whites The Indian asked Bird what he had better do to keep out of trouble, as he did not want to fight the whites, and also did not want to fight his Indian friends Bird's advice was for him to go on the Simcoe reservation and keep quiet. The old fellow started off to do so, seemingly greatly troubled Bird then informed his neighbors, and they sent Lockwood over here for arms to protect themselves

Indians of the Northeast

From our exchanges from Walla Walla and La Grande, we gather the following in relation to the Indians in Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory

The Union of the 26th says "The Dalles Mountaineer has been humbugged by some one, who says there are two thousand Indians in the vicinity of Priest Rapids on the Columbia river This is probably true, but they are nearly all 'good' Indians There is an old Indian burying ground there, where they have been 'planting' the noble red man for centuries, and counting these, there may be thousands of them there But there are not two hundred live Indians in that whole section"

Not long since a white man and two Indians concluded to try the speed of their horses, and, after a short time, the white man left the Indians out of sight behind On overhauling some other gentlemen, he told them that he had been chased by two Indians And this is the sensational story that we hear about two drunken Indians chasing a man

The LaGrande Sentinel of the same date says John Porter, who is familiar with the Nez Perce Indians, and per ticularly Joseph's band gave a call this week From him we learned much that has never been printed. Mr P was present when older Joseph, now deceased, planted the post which was to be the dividing line between the Willowa and Indian Valley, the former being claimed by him as the special country of his band At the time referred to, Joseph made a long speech to his Indians, who were all present, and in substance informed them that the Wallowa country belonged to them, and that they must at all hazards retain it—never give it to the whites That rather than lose their lands they must fight till death That he had never signed the treaty alienating the land to the United States, and that if his name was signed to the treaty it was done by fraud This speech had its effect, and at this late day the sons of Joseph and his band are determined to carry out the instructions of their dead chief Mr Porter has often conversed with Joseph and finds that he still adheres to the idea that he will fight till death rather than lose his country. But Joseph says, Mr. Porter asserts that he wishes to effect a compromise rather than war. In our mind Joseph will look in vain for a settlement of the Indian imbroglio by compromise No more Peace Commissioners will be appointed to hold useless pow wows with savages Joseph must submit to the power of the government, willingly if he will and forcibly if he must.

And again the Union says We have for some time been hearing reports from different parts of the country of the movements of Indians, that are well calculated to awaken the fears of settlers, if true One is that a weak or no since the Indians had warned the settlers in Hog Heaven, Whitman county, to leave, and that some had actually left Another is that the Indians had warned the settlers on Crab creek, Stevens county, to leave—and given them written notices at that. Another is that some Indians have started from the Umatilla Reservation with a band of fine saddle horses, supposed to be for the Modocs After making all possible inquiry, we are led to the belief that they are all canards, with but little truth in any of them We hope that all persons will refrain from putting such stories in circulation, unless they are sure of their truth. We will always be ready to give the alarm if we know of any real danger, and hope all others will do the same But it is not for the good of the country that people, either at home or abroad, should be unnecessarily alarmed, and made to believe that there is danger when none really exists.

THURSDAY MORNING MAY 1

A Decisive Philanthropy

The occasion of the present May Day is to us a fit one to call to mind the early history of Oregon which ushered in the first system of Public School education that has been called by the distinguished name of Free. It has been well and nobly sustained by the public mind and all respectful of the eastern papers that at no time in our early day retain citizen of Oregon from California were content with the mere support of the unprotected Indians once for all settled Modoc war. The story has a familiar sound. Let the Modocs who are now entrenched in the lava bed. The story has a familiar sound. Let the Modocs who are now entrenched in the lava bed. The story has a familiar sound. Let the Modocs who are now entrenched in the lava bed.

The Grant Parish Massacre

The Eastern papers of the 28th April are in hand giving full accounts of the horrible massacre of colored people in Grant Parish Louisiana. The details of the affair show it to have been even a more diabolically piece of treachery in cowardice that one would have inferred from the general statements received by telegraph at the time. Not more utterly treacherous was the treacherous murder of Captain Jack and his associates at which he did not hesitate to sacrifice with ruthless barbarity one of the most estimable women of the Modoc people after they had surrendered themselves to the hospitality of the white race. At Grant Parish the massacre of the unarmed people was killed after they had given themselves up. Being overpowered by the whites they were marched and were then cut down like so many wild cattle or jammed together into the Court House which was burned down over their heads.

It boots nothing to say that the negroes were aiding, and abetting in the usurpation of the government of the parish. Whether this was so or not seems not to be a question free from doubt. Each political party claims that the other was the usurper. It matters of little consequence whether the Kellogg government was the wrong or the McEnery government was the wrong. The wholesale murder of a hundred helpless people is not a thing, otherwise condonable affecting merely the ascendancy of one crowd of politicians or another. And then those colored people were murdered not because they were supposed to be usurpers but because they were colored people. This we do not pretend to demonstrable mathematically or provable by the kind of evidence required in the courts of law and yet every unbiased man knows that had they been white men instead of black the massacre never would have been perpetrated. It is the old hatred of the false chivalry toward the colored race.

At the seventh annual meeting of the National Underwriters which was held recently in New York the President Henry Oakes stated that the actual loss of property in the Boston fire was $70 000 000. On this Massachusetts insurance companies had risks to the amount of $35 000 000. Companies in other States held $20 000 000 and companies in foreign lands had $10 000 000 in policies. The companies had paid (a 73 per cent of this amount ($36 87 313). Mr. Oakes thought that experience had condemned the practice of competing for risks at low premiums, and proven it to be in every way injurious both to the company insuring and the insured. As a result of this pernicious system it is to be observed that when great disasters come upon an insured community—disasters involving the loss of millions of dollars—these companies are unable to meet their enormous obligations. The President spoke in high praise of the readiness with which the public met the demand for an advance of rates up to 50 per cent after the Chicago fire.

The Louisville Courier Journal of April 14th, gives an account of a fight between a body of Ku Klux in Henry County, Kentucky, and an old man of the name of Richard Williams. The fight was preceded by the threatening letters, with skull and cross bones for ornament which used to mark the proceedings of the clan. The old man had the services of two women of the house, who loaded his weapons for him. The Ku Klux got into the house and rushed violently upon him, but he proved too much for them, killing one and driving the rest away. The old man received two wounds, but nothing dangerous.

The Texas Pacific Railroad stockholders met in New York April 16th accepted the report of General Dodge Chief Engineer as to the progress of surveys, and approved contracts recently made by officers of the Company for the construction of the road. It is said in New York that the Company will complete a section extending to Fort Worth, during the present season.

Grave charges of fraud and mismanagement have been preferred at Washington against Surveyor General Hardenbergh of California and he has gone thither to explain them. The accusations are based on the official conduct of Hardenbergh in swamp land matters.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of William D. Shipman United States Circuit Judge has been filled by the appointment of Nathaniel Shipman of New York City.

A counterfeit fifty cent note has been discovered in Baltimore. The patent fibre paper is imitated by printing a representation of the fibre on the surface of the note.

The Government pays $12 000 a trip to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for carrying the U. S. mails to China.

In concluding an article on "The Assassination of Gen. Canby" the Springfield Republican says:

The peace policy in its essentials must be maintained. The Modoc assassination is a bad one but assassination has been a double game from the first. The government will find the surest peace, however, in treating the Indians still more strictly as wards and paupers—savages in their second childhood, whom we may feed and house till they die but for whom pistols are dangerous playthings—not nations with whom we may parley or trust ourselves. Our peace must be the peace enforced by might not resting on treaty or tribal consent.

Under date of April 17th the New York Times has this:

A meeting, the proceedings of which are kept secret, is in progress to night at the Lurnot House, at which the following gentlemen are present: P. H. Watson and S. L. M. Barlow, representing the Pacific Mail Company; Gen. Meigs, Jim the Atlantic and Great Western Company; Oliver Lownsdale and Jay Gould, the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis Company. A. J. Ferguson, of the Cincinnati Southern Company, is also said to be present.

It is high time that the community received the gone of principle that signs petitions for Huberman and pardon one immunity [illegible] which no man can do without degradation.

A Few More Figures on the Taxation Question

It has been shown that taxation in this city has increased much more rapidly during the last few years than population and property. In other words, the rate of taxation has increased notwithstanding their [illegible] considerable augmentation of both the [illegible] property and the population of the city. The ordinary rule that the rate of taxation increases as the population and wealth of the city increase is not borne out by the [illegible]. We present below some figures from San Francisco which contain a lesson for Portland people to heed. It will be borne in mind that the city and county governments of San Francisco are consolidated, so that the rate here presented includes the entire State, county, school and city taxes as well as a large sum to pay interest on [illegible]. The figures we present are from the San Francisco Bulletin of recent date.

The Judiciary Committee before fixing the rate of taxation for the Assembly estimate of public expenditures for the next fiscal year, which is as follows:

A LEVY OF $1 80 ON $100 RECOMMENDED.

The committee with the above estimate before them, fixed the value of the total real and personal property in the city and county at $200 000 000.

The order drafted by the Committee and passed to print last night provides simply for a tax levy of $1 50 for municipal and 30 cents for State purposes—making a total tax of $1 80 on each $100 worth of property.

Add our State, county school and city rates together and see how the result will compare with those figures.

A Solemn Protest

PORTLAND, April 30 1873

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

"In the name of God, Amen." I wish to protest against a species of theology that might have answered a purpose in the dark ages but which I regard as too effete to be now preached in even an Indian camp. I allude to the custom in certain directions, of charging God with the authorship of all the acts performed by weak men, crazy men, and mean men. If I should become insane through debauchery and blow my brains out, I do not want my friends or my Church brethren to get together and 'resolve' that 'Almighty God has seen fit in his infinite wisdom to take him from our midst.' I shall have no sort of objection to their 'resolving' that I was a good fellow, a brother beloved,' or even a 'Saint'—that is, if they want to—but I do most solemnly protest against their slandering 'Almighty God' by charging him with having pulled the trigger or with having put it into my head to pull it myself.

I find an instance in point, illustrating the theory of the dark ages, in Menoham's account of the last interview between the 'Peace Commission,' and the Modoc savages. Mr. Thomas is reported as saying to those murderers: "The Great Spirit put it in the heart of the President to send me here, etc." I am induced to think that Mr. Thomas believed this from what he said before going to the lava bed, in answer to the warning of Riddle and his squaw wife. Riddle and squaw said: 'Don't go they will kill you.' Mr. Thomas remarked 'that he did not believe that God had sent him to do so noble a work with such an end in prospect.' Mr. Thomas was probably ignorant of the manner in which this criminal farce christened a 'Peace Commission' armed with the 'pow wow policy,' was begotten in Washington City by the 'Oregon Delegation' of office hunters and given birth to by the fiend whom they debauched he would never have made God the father of this monstrous deformity. Does any sane man in Oregon believe that God had anything more to do with sanctifying this peace commission to the camp of the Modocs than he had in 'putting it into the hearts' of Jack's band to shoot Thomas and try to scalp Meacham with a dull butcher knife. Does any man believe that the 'Oregon delegation' were 'inspired men,' when they got up the sublime farce that ended in slaughter, after sixty days of 'pow wow,' during which the snows melted off and afforded the savages all the opportunity they wanted to escape and continue their slaughter of defenceless men and women? I sit in my door and count some seven or eight churches said to be devoted to the worship of the true God in Portland. I hope for the honor of civilization to say nothing of religion that in those churches the follies, errors and crimes of—as are not saddled on God. I believe that the people of Portland are to far advanced to tolerate a species of theology that ought not to be taught outside of a Modoc sweat house if even there. Lay all the blunders and crimes you please on the Devil on Baalam's ass or on any other ass but in Heaven's name don't commit blasphemy by charging it on God.

Lo! the Poor

The Louisville Courier Journal is engaged in the thankless task of extracting sunbeams from the Modoc cucumber. Here are some of the sunbeams:

He was doubtless aware that his race had been beaten back by the strong arm of civilization toward the setting sun. He was also aware that he was near the deep waters of the Pacific Ocean and he turned, like a stag at bay upon his assailants. All ready, and he when he drew his pistol and leveled it at the head of General Canby. This step was evidently premeditated and coolly determined on. It was the grim resolve of a tribe who fully realized the consequences, and with a proud and unflinching stoicism made up their minds to die. They settled upon the losing game before them. Though death to a savage does not possess the terrors with which our civilization invests it but such as it is they resolved to meet it. Of course the massacre was base and brutal treachery, and the authors will meet a deserved extermination. There is something however, in the ghastly resolve of the Modoc chief which gives dignity to his resentments and pathos to the funeral mont which will ere long overtake him. Most of the existing tribes have woefully degenerated from their ancestors. They have become corrupt and enfeebled by the vices of our civilization. Their noble traits of character have become tainted under the influence of our society at [illegible] many years back they have performed [illegible] exploit reaching the dignity of crime. This supreme act of cruel treachery remains as however of the stern chiefs of the older tribes and proves to us more conclusively than ever that the Indian cannot be civilized. He is fading with the shades of our Western forests. He cannot endure the companionship of the white man. He prefers death and Captain Jack has done much to hasten the final doom.

CITY.

ROAD TAXES.—According to the order of his county by the County Court at January term, all the Road Districts [illegible] dated and out of the dozen or more which formerly existed four new ones [illegible]. All that portion of the county [illegible] of the Willamette is divided into [illegible] Districts and all west, including [illegible] consolidated into two. Instead of [illegible] overs collecting the road tax on the [illegible] river as was their duty under the law, the Court appointed the firm of Page & Corbett to attend to the collection [illegible] and from persons liable to taxation in the districts numbered 1 and 2. Under the [illegible] from the Court the County Clerk has made out for each of the Districts embracing the names of all persons residing in each District subject to road taxation. Nos. 1 and 2—have already been [illegible] and placed in the hands of the above [illegible] for collection. In the re-districting and the appointment of persons to attend to the collection of road taxes [illegible] had in view the expediting of the work [illegible] and important work. Delays may occur [illegible] and the taxes collected with less [illegible] shorter time than under former [illegible]. The principal benefits to result from the [illegible] arrangement are the earlier collection [illegible] and the working of the roads when the [illegible] weather continues. Formerly, the [illegible] tardily and in numerous instances [illegible] improved until after the descent of [illegible].

GRANITE QUARRY.—Specimens of granite laid on our table yesterday, received from [illegible] in Washington Territory. The [illegible] which these specimens were taken has been found on the farm of Mr. S. [illegible] near the north fork of Lewis river [illegible] mile and a half above Pekin. Pekin [illegible] Lieban has resided for nearly twenty years [illegible] farm in question, and has traveled [illegible] times over the ledge. His attention [illegible] a short time since to the peculiar [illegible] some of the outcroppings. An examination [illegible] the stone was made, resulting in the [illegible] the quarry. Inexhaustible quantities [illegible] it appears, can be found in the immediate [illegible]. As near as could be determined, the [illegible] extent 1,500 feet long, 30 feet deep [illegible] known width. Some of the granite [illegible] shown to an experienced stone cutter [illegible] who, after and examination pronounced [illegible] to California granite. The quarry [illegible] contiguous to the river, and access [illegible] gable water. This stone can be [illegible] barges to the city or other points [illegible] the different qualities of rock. [illegible] over other stone for building purposes [illegible] cheapness of transportation, ought [illegible] recommend it to general use.

ENCUMBRANCE.—North Front street [illegible] street to C, will be greatly obstructed [illegible] months to come by various building [illegible]. One large brick building is already [illegible] construction, and two more will be [illegible] of a few weeks. Mr. Perkins' brick [illegible] corner of Front and A street, has [illegible] second story, and the iron fronting [illegible] been raised. The stone foundation [illegible] Flanders' building has been finished [illegible] brick work will follow when the material [illegible] brought on the ground. A force of [illegible] gaged at present in excavating for [illegible] ing for the Bank of British Columbia [illegible] and Front streets. Brick, stone and [illegible] soon be scattered along Front street [illegible] limits designated, in a few weeks, [illegible] exclusion of travel.

A RACE IN VAIN.—Information was [illegible] officer Higley late last evening that a [illegible] looking fellow was endeavoring to sell [illegible] and a pair of trousers at a second-hand [illegible] on Front street. The officer entered [illegible] where he found the main driving [illegible] the dealer in old clothes. No sooner [illegible] officer made his appearance than the [illegible] gentleman forgot about the coat and [illegible] shot out at the front door. This move [illegible] so unexpected that the officer did not [illegible] portunity to intercept him. However, [illegible] his man a merry race, and chased him [illegible] blocks. Taking advantage of a corner [illegible] thief made his escape, and eluded the [illegible] the policeman. In the race the [illegible] whistle and could not signal so as to [illegible] tention to the fleeing thief.

FROM GERMANY DIRECT.—By the [illegible] from San Francisco, there arrived a [illegible] migrants who contemplate permanently [illegible] on this State, provided suitable [illegible] obtained at reasonable figures. Of [illegible] rived, the German element predominated [illegible] eral German families are from the Atlantic [illegible] and also eighteen persons [illegible] Germany and Switzerland. In the [illegible] conversation with one of the latter, [illegible] numbers of Germans intend immigrating [illegible] during the present season.

PRINTING OFFICE FOR SALE.—A [illegible] a thoroughly equipped Job office, [illegible] most thriving towns on the N. W. [illegible] sale. Does a large amount of [illegible] has a large and increasing [illegible] and is otherwise prosperous [illegible] or whole interest will be sold. Terms [illegible] and part on time, or will trade for [illegible] per. The proprietor has a business [illegible] in the States, and offers to sell [illegible] only. For particulars inquire of [illegible] Portland.

NEW STOVE FOUNDRY.—Some days [illegible] was began for the foundation of [illegible] foundry building on the east side of [illegible] south of Brooklyn creek. Three men [illegible] designed for those connected with [illegible] and their families, have just been [illegible] are ready for occupancy. Work of [illegible] will be prosecuted with as much [illegible] until operations are to be commenced [illegible] it is expected to have everything [illegible] for work by the first of June.

STILL COMING.—Rev. A. E. Frederick [illegible] us that he has just received [illegible] Peter H. Johnson, General Agent [illegible] desire to immigrate to Oregon, to [illegible] twenty-five Norwegian families [illegible] Clinton Junction, Michigan, on the [illegible] for Oregon. Mr. Johnson states [illegible] probable that a number of families [illegible] colony at Omaha. We can expect [illegible] grants on the steamer following the [illegible] sail next Saturday.

DIRECTORS' MEETING.—The Board of Directors of School District No. 1, held [illegible] Tuesday evening. Present, Messrs. [illegible] Glenn, and Gilmer, and the Clerk. A resolution was adopted by the Board [illegible] it was determined to complete the [illegible] School House building during vacation [illegible] ent summer. The Board also passed [illegible] legalizing the actions of the Clerk [illegible] of warrant No. 282, of $160 for [illegible].

FAIR PASSAGE.—Splendid weather [illegible] tored by the steamer Ajax on her [illegible] this port. Little or no head winds [illegible] ced, and the steamer was able to [illegible]. Nothing was seen of the Orpheus [illegible] probably passed during the night [illegible] the mouth, the bar was found [illegible] steamer passed over without any [illegible] was left about noon on Tuesday [illegible] ed her wharf at 10 P. CITY.

Road Taxes—According to the order of the County Court at the February term, all the Road Districts were ordered and directed to collect the road taxes for the year 1873 which had been levied on the property of the county by the Board of Equalization. That portion of the county lying west of the Willamette is divided into two large Road Districts and all west and including the city limits are consolidated into two. These Districts are supervised and collecting the road tax in the city of Portland is under the direction of Horace Lee. The Supervisors of the west side of the river as was their duty on the first Monday in April appointed the firm of Pierce & Wall collectors to collect the road tax in said west side district. Pierce & Wall collected about two thirds of the road tax and turned over to the County Clerk the books and rolls containing the names of the persons owning property in each District subject to road taxation. The Districts—Nos 1 and 2—have already been completed and placed in the hands of the above named firm for collection. In the remaining districts no duplicates have been made out. Each of the Districts must be completed by the Supervisors and returned to the County Clerk before the first Monday in May, when the County Court will meet as a Board of Equalization for the purpose of hearing complaints from persons who may think their property has been assessed too high. The Supervisors are required to make out a list of the names of all persons owning property within

BY GEORGE D. KELLY.

Born of the ancient captive tale for whom the ages sing,
Keeping the Banner Green below the hurtful Saxon Red,
Now is a nation's anger fired, and in its vengeance strong,
Once and forever to outlive the legend of your song.

Not for a foreign Christian I march on the stormy wave
Rises the Celtic cry your soul to stir a people's daze,
Here a where no despot should is born there comes the wrathful no!
Dazed by the Pot trot of the wild is the noble darkest die I.

Lest by the Mother's hatred not the helm may grace to spare
Ingrates who whether wrong or right, have led us to Erbor—
Here is to the Verdant Manual the gif for every savage
heal
Once and forevermore to raise the Green above the Red"

The Quaker Policy.

In answer to a note requesting him to make public a statement of the object and methods of the peace policy, the Secretary of the Interior sent the annexed communication, which we take from the N Y Times

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT, }
WASHINGTON, April 15, 1873 }

L. L. Crounse, Esq

DEAR SIR.—Your letter of this date suggesting some utterance from me, at the present moment, as the plan, purpose, and scope of the Indian policy of the department, which has popularly and properly become known as the "peace policy," is before me. It ought not to be necessary, and so far as the purposes of the Government are concerned it is not, to enter upon any fresh elucidation of what is meant by this policy, but as the public mind is sought to be confused, if not inflamed, by the criticisms and misrepresentations to which you all .de, as to the real purposes animating the Government in its course toward the Indian tribes, I venture to present, briefly as I may, and distinctly as possible, an answer to your inquiries.

First—The "peace policy" proposed to place the Indians upon reservations as rapidly as possible, where they can be provided for in such manner as the dictates of humanity and Christian civilization require. Being thus placed upon reservations they will be removed from such contiguity to our frontier settlements as otherwise will lead, necessarily to frequent outrages, wrongs, and disturbances of the public peace. On these reservations they can be taught, as fast as possible, the arts of agriculture and such pursuits as are incidents to civilations of the country now engaged in this work, acting in harmony with the Federal Government. Their intellectual moral, and religious culture, can be prosecuted, and thus it is hoped that humanity and kindness may take the place of barbarity and cruelty. If a majority of the people of the United States prefer extermination to the course here indicated, and desire to see all the horrors and bloodshed and loss of life among both whites and Indians incident to the policy of extermination, then it is well enough to denounce in vague and general if not unmeaning terms the "Quaker policy."

Second—Whenever it shall be found that any tribe or band of Indians persistently refuse to go upon a reservation, and determine to continue their nomadic habits, accompanied with depredations and outrages upon our frontier settlements, then it is the policy of the President to treat such band or tribe with all needed severity, to punish them for their outrages according to their merits, and thus to teach them that it is better to follow the advice of the Government and go upon reservations and become civilized, rather than to continue the native habits and practices. The recent conduct of the Modocs will furnish to the Government an example for the treatment of such tribes and bands as refuse to accept the benevolent purposes of what is termed the "Quaker policy." There may be some so impressed with the necessity of non-resistance as to object to the punishment of Indians under the circumstances last referred to. If there be any such they will, I feel assured, find opportunity for complaining because the policy is not peaceable enough.

Third—It is the determination of this policy to see that all supplies, of every kind and nature, whether for food or clothing, purchased for such Indians as are upon reservations and remain at peace, are procured at fair and reasonable prices, so that the Indians meriting these supplies may receive the same without having the funds of the Government squandered in their purchase. If there be any whose vocation may be interrupted by being deprived of the profits which speculation or peculation may have heretofore afforded in the purchases for Indians, such persons will find abundant reason to complain, because the "Quaker policy" deprives them of the opportunity of gains and profits heretofore enjoyed in this business.

Fourth—It is the purpose of the Government, as fast as possible, through the instrumentality and by the advice of the religious organizations, and by all other means within its power, to procure competent, upright, faithful, moral, and religious agents to care for the Indians that go upon reservations, to distribute the goods and provisions that are purchased for them by the benevolence of the Government, to aid in their intellectual, moral, and religious culture, and thus to assist in the great work of humanity and benevolence which the peace policy means. If there be any who are thus deprived of Government positions and office that have hitherto afforded large profit without labor, and without merit, and who are to be prevented in the future from defrauding Indians for their own personal gain, those persons may complain of the "Quaker policy" and demand extermination.

Fifth—It is the purpose of the peace policy to establish schools, and through the instrumentality of the Christian organizations, acting in harmony with the Government, as fast as possible to build churches and organize Sabbath-schools, whereby these savages may be taught a better way of life than they have heretofore pursued, and be made to understand the comforts and benefits of a Christian civilization, and thus be prepared ultimately to become citizens of this nation.

These I understand to be the purposes of the President's peace policy, and this seems to be the occasion when it ought to be so studied as to be understood; for I believe that, when understood, there are few American citizens who will find the heart to condemn it. I also feel at liberty to say that, as here explained, it has the approbation of every member of the President's Cabinet, and that the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Interior will hereafter, as they have heretofore, act in perfect accord and with perfect sincerity in endeavoring fully and completely to carry out and execute this policy. Very respectfully yours, C. DELANO.

How a Married Man Sews on a Button.

It is bad enough to see a bachelor sew on a button; but he is the embodiment of grace alongside of a married man. Necessity has compelled experience in the case of the former; but the latter has depended upon some one else for this service, and, fortunately for the sake of society, it is rarely he is obliged to resort to the needle himself. Sometimes the patient wife scolds her hand or runs a sliver under the nail of the index finger of that hand; and it is then the man clutches the needle around the neck, and, forgetting to tie a knot in the thread, commences to put on a button. It is always in the morning, and from five to twenty minutes after this he is expected to be down street. He lays the button exactly on the site of its predecessor, and pushes the needle through one eye, and carefully draws the thread after, leaving about three inches of it sticking up for his way He says to himself, "Well, if women don't have the easiest time I ever see." Then he comes back the other way, and gets the needle through the cloth easy enough, and lays himself out to find the eye. But, in spite of a great deal of patient jabbing the needle-point persists in bucking against the solid parts of the button, and, finally, when he loses patience, his fingers catch the thread, and that three inches he has left to hold the button slips through the eye in a twinkling, and the button rolls leisurely across the floor. He picks it up without a single remark, out of respect for his children, and makes another attempt to fasten it. This time, when coming back with the needle, he keeps both the thread and button from slipping by covering them with his thumb, and it is out of regard for that part of him that he feels around for the eye in a very careful and judicious manner. But, eventually losing his philosophy as the search becomes more and more hopeless, he falls to jabbing about in a loose and savage manner, and it is just then the needle finds the opening and comes up through the button and part way through his thumb with a celerity that no human ingenuity can guard against Then he lays down the things with a few familiar quotations, and presses the injured hand between his knees, and then holds it under the other arm, and finally puts it into his mouth And all the while he pictures and calls upon Heaven and earth to witness that there has never been anything like it since the world was created, and howls and whistles and moans and sobs After a while he calms down, and puts on his pants and fastens them together with a stick and goes to his business a changed man.

Some Herald Quintuple Notes for the Curious.

With the promptitude that characterizes the American mind when bent on inquiry a number of letters on the subject of Sunday's quintuple issue of the Herald have reached us Queries reaching from the roof down to the inmost recesses of the cashier's department have poured in upon us, and in deference to the wide wish we present a few replies. The Sunday edition was one hundred and fifty thousand copies The number consisted of twenty-pages, that is one hundred and twenty-columns, of which seventy-eight were advertisements and forty-two reading matter A detail which will be now to non professionals is, that to produce one hundred and fifty thousand full copies it was necessary to take nine hundred thousand impressions. To accomplish this, in the short time allowed, five rotary Hoe press of eight and ten cylinders each and two Bullock perfecting presses were kept rolling off one thousand impressions per minute. To drive those huge presses two engines of eighty-horse power are kept in motion by burning six tons of coal in the furnaces To form the stereotype plates for the cylinders eight tons of type metal were melted down to cast one hundred and forty-eight plates, weighing when finished and dressed thirty-eight pounds each. The ink on a single copy would not be taken into consideration by the average observer, but it required seven hundred and twenty-five pounds to keep the rollers prepared to leave the imprint of their kisses on the eighteen million virgin papers that were to glow at daylight with the news. And those rollers were composed of five hundred pounds of glue smuggled with one thousand pounds of honey. Then the virgin pages—the paper on which all this is printed. There are eighty men and boys about the presses handling it. Shoot by sheet it is passed in by the feeders until seventeen tons, or thirty-four thousand pounds, are printed on both sides. If you were to pile those sheets up one upon the other they would make a monument one hundred and twenty-five feet high. If you are a curious calculator you may compute how far the four hundred and fifty thousand sheets would reach placed end to end. The two eight-page sheets are thirty-two inches by forty-six, and the four-page sheet thirty-two inches by twenty-three. Laid end to end, they would form a strip over two hundred and seventy-two miles long by thirty-two inches broad. They would reach from the Herald office to Albany and back again. They would reach to Boston, with thirty-six miles left for a trip through the Bay State. They would reach to Washington, with enough left after a circle round the White House, the Capitol and the Treasury Department for a track to Fredericksburg. Three such issues would reach Cincinnati, three and a half would Chicago, and less than six would bring them to New Orleans. Placing the four hundred and fifty thousand sheets so as to form a square they would cover five hundred and fifty-two million square inches, or eighty-eight acres. That is more than all the open squares and parks of the city, exclusive of Central Park. The area or printed matter would be, of course, one hundred and seventy-six acres, and five such issues would cover Central Park. As a track of printed matter, two pages wide, one such issue would reach to Quebec. We have already stated that the advertisements on Sunday filled seventy-eight columns. They covered every line of business and consisted of two thousand nine hundred and sixty-two separate advertisements. Some idea will be formed of the machinery to get these advertisements into shape when it is stated that over twenty thousand words of "adds" were transmitted on Saturday from the uptown and Brooklyn branches to this office by ten telegraph operators over the Herald's wires. We could multiply these curious details through a great many columns of the Herald, but for the present these must suffice. In this journal's growing power, resources and achievements Americans take just pride. Its further development in all these things is only a matter depending on the growth of our rising nation.—N. Y. Herald.

The Chamberlain of the Roman Church

His Eminence Philippe de Angelis, the first on the list of the Order of the Cardinal Priests in the Sacred College, was born at Ascoli on the 16th of April, in the year 1792. He is, consequently, eighty-one years of age this month. Venerable himself in years his official functions, as Chamberlain of the Holy Roman Church, towards the Pontiff, Pius the Ninth, are rendered especially solemn by the great age of the distinguished patient. The Cardinal's present call from a temporary recess retirement to the Vatican gives indication that the authorities of the Pontificate consider the Pope's life still in danger. The Cardinal Chamberlain has important duties to perform immediately after a Pope dies. Indeed, if Pio Nono were at all a nervous man, the advent of Cardinal Chamberlain, coupled with the fact that hours and hours are spent in discussion whether, in the event of his death, he should be buried according to old custom, and his successor be appointed according to the laws of the Church, would suffice to kill him. The ceremonies which must be observed at the death of a Pope are numerous and interesting. As soon as he has expired, his head is covered, and nobody can touch him or remove him from his bed until the death has been duly certified with all the legal formalities. The Cardinal Chamberlain is ushered, by Monsignor the Master of the Chamber, into the bedroom of the deceased, several members of the Palatine Guard and the Apostolic Notary following him. One of the private servants of the Pope uncovers the face of the dead Pontiff, and the Cardinal Chamberlain having authenticated the death, receives from the hands of the Master of the Chamber the Anello Piscatorio. It is then the duty of the Apostolic Notary to write out and read aloud the legal acknowledgment of the recognition of the body, and the consignment of the Anello. This done, all retire, and the Penitentiaries of St. Peter's alone remain in the room of the deceased, to offer up prayers for his soul. On leaving the apartments of the Pope, the Cardinal immediately signs an order that the great bell of the Capitol shall announce to the public the sad advent. On the bell beginning to toll all the churches must follow, and funeral services commence immediately everywhere.

Here is another dreadful book on The Prophecies of the Apocalypse, by the Rev. James De Pui, A. M., chaplain in the United States Army. Mr. De Pui is dead, but that he was a brave man this volume bears witness. His courage was, however, of the sort exhibited by those persons who are said to rush in where angels fear to tread; for he has reduced the Apocalypse to a chart, and has actually made a diagram of the great white throne and its environs, with semi circles of dots representing the elders and the angels, and a circle representing the sea, and other devices not less gross, picturing personages whose names we are not willing to connect in any way with such an outrageous travesty. Yet this must be a good book, for it has passed to a second edition.—Independent.

A "NOVEL IDEA."—When John Howard was appointed high sheriff of his county, he conceived the novel idea of inquiring what duties were attached to the office. The duties of a high sheriff, he was informed, were to ride into town on court days in a gilt coach, entertain the judges at dinner, and give an annual county ball. But Howard pushed his eccentricity so far as to look into the law books, to see if there might not be something else required at the hands of a high sheriff. There was, he was to inspect the jail! He inspected the jail; and his inspection had the unprecedented quality of being real. He looked, he felt, he tasted; he weighed, he measured, he questioned. The reformation of the jails of Christendom dates from that incongruous act.—Parton, in May Atlantic.

Mr Ansart Walker, in an address before the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, recently advanced some ideas on the subject of the resumption of specie payments, and said "It is a popular delusion very commonly entertained in both sides of the Rocky Mountains, viz: That the country is fast approaching, by an easy and natural process the resumption of specie payments—that we are 'growing up to' the present volume of currency, and shall soon find our paper on a par with gold There cannot be a greater fallacy than this. So far as the contraction necessary for the resumption of specie payments are concerned, the country is further from that consummation to day than five years ago. But, it will be asked, how is the difference between gold and greenbacks being greatly diminished within the past few years, and does not that show that we are on the way to the return to specie payments? Not at all, because this fall in gold has not been the result of the operations of the laws of trade, but if the manipulations of the Secretary of the Treasury, who has been playing the bear in the gold market for the last four years. The premium on gold was about 12 per cent, it has been reduced by the sales of the Treasury to an average of about 1 per cent, a reduction of 20 per cent. But what good has all this done? Which is the better for it? The gold miner? No; for they have been obliged to part with their product for 20 per cent less when exchanging it for greenbacks, or the commodities that come from the East where greenbacks are used. Have the farmers gained by it? No, for their commodities have been lowered, as we have seen, when measured by greenbacks, to the same extent as the decline in the gold premium How great this loss has been in the aggregate, it is hard to say, if we take into consideration that the amount of agricultural productions, including cotton, have not been less than $300 000,000 per annum, amounting, in four years, to $1,200,000,000, upon which, if the loss by the decline of the gold premium has been 20 per cent, the total amount will be $240,000,000. This is a very low estimate, and being so, it is not to be wondered that the farming interest is greatly depressed in all sections of the Union"

European Money Market.

The new German coinage bill was introduced into the Reichsrath on the 15th of March, and passed to its first reading. In commenting on the subject, Dr. Michaelis said:

The total of the new gold coinage on the 15th of March amounted to 531,250,000 marks, or about £26 560,000 The amount previously reported to the 22d of February, the date to which our last notice was brought down, having been £24,656,000, it would appear that in the three weeks' interval the coinage was £1,876,000 or at the rate of £468,000 per week. The stringency of the recent demand for gold for Germany is thus explained, and it was stated in the debate that the previous slow rate of coinage was regretted, although the German Government felt itself bound not to press its purchases on the English market for a time

Over $800,000 in treasure was shipped from New York to Europe during the week ending April 12th, and not a dollar of it was in American gold coin. This is a good feature. With one exception, the treasure shipments from New York thus far this year have been without parallel. The amount shipped is $15,679,000. In the same time in 1868, a trifle over $10,000,000 was shipped, and again in 1862 the shipments were $16,589,000, while for 1871 the amount was $14,978,000 In no previous year has the amount reached $10,000,000 for a corresponding period, while the average for a series of years has been about $6,000,000. The drain this year is 160 per cent larger than it was for the same time last year. The only way to restore the equilibrium is to curtail the imports, when the coin will again flow back to this country for investment.

Miscellaneous.

Bellingham Bay coal at San Francisco has been further reduced to $8 50 ₱ ton, screened, to the trade Three months ago it readily brought $11. Bay and Seattle coal now bring $10 ₱ ton

Puget Sound lumber, by the cargo, to dealers in San Francisco, is now quoted at $18@19 ₱ thousand for rough, $23@25 ₱ thousand for dressed Laths are selling at $3@3 25 ₱ thousand.

The bark Loch Dee, which sailed from this port for Queenstown in October last, with wheat, sailed from the latter place on the 3d of April, for San Francisco.

Very few people have any accurate idea of the magnitude and importance of the silk manufacturing interest of the United States. The total value of the manufactured materials in 1872 was $86,450,000, being an increase of more than four millions over that for the preceding year, and of twelve millions over 1870, showing the rapid growth of the business.

San Francisco Market.

[BY MAIL.]

The San Francisco Herald of last Friday says: "Business has got a serious set-back by the general appearance of the epizootic, which necessarily withdraws from service a very considerable number of horses, and greatly restricts the carriage of goods—so much so, that orders from the interior, by mail, for merchandize are promptly countermanded by telegraph. Teaming in the mountains and valleys, as well as in our own city, is largely circumscribed—horse cars and vehicles generally withdrawn from street service, so that our business streets have assumed almost the quiet of a Sabbath day. The impression prevails that the interruption will be of short duration"

Owing to the prevailing horse distemper, the demand for Oats has greatly fallen off the past few days, necessitating the storing of late supplies. Prices are off a little, now $2 12½@2 35 ₱ cental. Sales for the week, about 5,000 sacks. The first car-load from Omaha sold for $2 30, the second, being in bulk, sold at $2 15. The market closes very quiet. They since came down to $2@2 10.

Advices from Chicago by telegraph, report a rise in that market of half a cent per pound on all hog products. Some San Francisco dealers, holding large amounts there in reserve, improved the opportunity to sell 230,000 lbs of meat at the advance The demand in San Francisco for Bacon, Hams, etc, is light, and orders from the interior much less than usual. Business is more or less prostrated by the prevailing horse distemper Pork is held higher, owing to the rise at the East. Butter is also dearer, owing to the large amount retained by the dairymen, now extensively engaged in packing, in preference to selling in rolls at current rates.

Tonnage is quite scarce. There is very little disengaged in port; consequently Grain Freights are more or less nominal, say £3 15s@£4 to Cork for orders. The ship Puritan has gone to Portland, Oregon, for a cargo of Flour, thence to Hongkong; she is said to get $16,000 for the voyage. As before advised, quite a large fleet of ships to arrive has been chartered for Wheat of the new crop in midsummer, at £4@£4 10s to Cork for orders. At this writing it is said there is no longer any disposition shown to make charters at anything like these figures. Rates to arrive entirely nominal.

The steamer Ajax, from Oregon, brought down 700 cases Salmon, of which none is offering on this market, it all being required for orders taken in advance of the packing There is no change in prices worthy of note.

Overland treasure exports, by express, for the week ended April 23d, reached $210,245 62, of which $107,-121 62 were in gold bars, $100,000 in gold coin, and $96,-124 in silver bars

As one result of the late rains, Wheat holders show more disposition to part with their surplus stock. The market, however, is not brisk, as English orders cannot at present be executed within purchasing limits Barley is neglected and prices steady Oats have declined under free receipts from Oregon and Nebraska. Hay is without notable change Bran is considerably higher, owing to the increased feed requirements, occasioned by the epizootic now very prevalent in our city Flour remains unchanged in value Corn is plentiful and slow of sale. Beans are unchanged in value. Potatoes are measurably as before noted Onions are considerably higher. Hides are lower. Tallow is plentiful and cheap Wool is in large supply, but the market is bare of choice spring—long staple

North Carolina.

At last it is settled that North Carolina has gone Republican on the popular vote, the majority being some where in the two thousands. The legislature remains Democratic.

The record of the last session of the legislature of 1-79, and that gang of [illegible] was a striking example, and one very opportune to awaken the Democratic mind of the country to what it has fallen into, in supposing that it was going to have an easy march to victory. This Republican triumph in North Carolina reiterates that State to Grant and Wilson, and promises a like result in six or seven other Southern States.

By the victory in North Carolina the fight for the remainder of the campaign will be made easier. It is a severe blow to the Greeley faction, and lets the wind out of their inflated efforts to carry the day by a campaign of bombing and brag. Of course, their organs will continue to assert that Greeley's election is sure; and day after day they will give us stories of men in buckram who have left the Republicans and joined the Greeley ranks; but this will be harmless employment, and in a short time all the illusions which it nourishes will be dissipated.

Greeley and Lincoln.

It may not be generally known that in the second Lincoln campaign Greeley was one of Lincoln's opponents, tried to get him off the ticket after he was nominated, and never advocated his election till his success was assured beyond a doubt. Yet such is the fact. After Lincoln's nomination in 1864 Greeley tried to get up a third party to secure his defeat. To bring this about he addressed the following letter to the Governors of loyal States. It caused much comment at the time:

NEW YORK, Sept. 22, 1864.

Hon. ——:

YOUR EXCELLENCY: The undersigned have been requested by a body of influential Unionists to communicate with the loyal Governors, for the purpose of eliciting replies to the following queries:

1. In your judgment, is the re-election of Mr. Lincoln a probability?

2. In your judgment, can your own State be carried for Mr. Lincoln?

3. In your judgment, do the interests of the Union party, and if so of the country, require the substitution of another candidate in the place of Mr. Lincoln?

In making the queries we give no opinion of our own, and request yours only for the most private and confidential use.

Yours truly, HORACE GREELEY,
Editor of the Tribune (and two others.)

The responses to this circular were contrary to Greeley's hopes. The loyal masses of the country stood by Lincoln. But Greeley could not see the solid grounds for popular confidence in him. He is now making a similar mistake in regard to Grant. In 1864 Greeley was willing to risk the overthrow of the Republican party, and the consequent peril of the country, for trivial, or else for unworthy, motives. He is equally ready now.

There is another fact. It will be remembered that in 1864 Greeley importuned Lincoln to let him go to Canada to negotiate with rebel agents as to terms of peace. These agents were Jacob Thompson, Clement C. Clay and George N. Saunders. The negotiations came to nothing, as Mr. Lincoln had foreseen. But it appears from the Confederate archives, just published, that these same men, Thompson, Clay and Saunders, were at that very time organizing schemes of insurrection throughout the Northern States, and working with all their energy to alienate the country from Lincoln and cause his defeat. The defeat of Lincoln they held would be equivalent to a great Confederate victory, and the peace conference which they solicited and which Greeley urged Lincoln to grant, was one of the preliminaries for making the North tired of the war and for contributing to the overthrow of the Administration in the election.

Thus it appears that Greeley was working against Lincoln at the very time when the Confederate Government and its agents in Canada were also putting forth special efforts to defeat him, under the conviction that such a result, if it could be brought about, would be an immense advantage to their cause. While it does not follow, and while we would not charge, that Greeley was knowingly and intentionally playing into the hands of these men and betraying his country, yet it does follow that his conduct at that time, in opposing Lincoln and attempting to organize a party to beat him after he was nominated, was not such as to commend him to the American people as a man to whom the destinies of the country should now be intrusted. He is now seeking the Presidency. Is it prudent to elevate to that position a man whose schemes would have ruined the country had they not been checked?

Greeley's Secession Record.

We hear that in several parts of Oregon Greeley's supporters are denying that the great Chappaquack ever advocated secession. But here is the proof in an extract which appeared over the signature of "H. G." in the New York Tribune of January 24, 1861:

As to secession, I have repeatedly said, and here repeat, that if the people of the slave States, or the cotton States alone, really wish to get out of the Union; I am in favor of letting them out, as soon as that result can be peacefully and constitutionally attained. But their case can not be so urgent as to require that the President and his subordinates should perjure themselves in deference to its requirements. If they will only be patient, not rush to seize Federal forts, arsenals, arms and subtreasuries, but take first, deliberately, a fair vote by ballot of their own citizens, none being coerced or intimidated, and the vote shall indicate a settled resolve to get out of the Union, I will do all I can to help them out at an early day.

Foiled in one direction in their assertions that Grant's "cottage by the sea" was given him by Thomas Murphy, the mendacious press now take another course. The Herald now copies from Eastern papers a story that A. T. Stewart was asked to subscribe $5,000 for the purchase of the house at Long Branch, and that when he saw the paper there were eight subscribers to it. This is simply an amended slander, an invention of malice and mendacity, and in every particular as false as its predecessor. Our neighbor of the Herald works with great industry in publishing all the unfounded stories which are fabricated by coadjutors in all parts of the country.

All over the United States Greeley Clubs and Committees issue congratulatory addresses and fired guns, in honor of the "victory" in North Carolina. Now that the State is known to be Republican by a decided majority, the disappointment of the Greeleyites is as bitter as their former elation was excessive.

"Keep Yourselves from Idols."

When Henry Ward Beecher in 1868 expressed doubts as to the wisdom of impeaching Andrew Johnson, Horace Greeley thus "went for" him in the Tribune:

Mr. Beecher has achieved a notion and will of popularity. In the conception of every knowing, duelist, negro-driver and rowdy from the St. John to the Rio Grande, he has at once ceased to be a fanatic, a bigot, a disunionist, and become 'an enlightened and patriotic statesman,' and has been honored with a nomination for the Presidency by the united voice of men of the disreputable classes specified. The Thugs of New Orleans, in the person of Wormouth, attended the Convention that gave him the nomination, and the organs of Ku Kluxism all over the South are loud in their praises of Greeley—no longer a fanatic and bigot, but 'an enlightened and patriotic statesman.'"

An Independent View.

The Boston Globe, an influential newspaper which discusses political matters from an independent standpoint, after animadverting in strong terms upon the outrageous falsehoods and corrupt means resorted to by the unprincipled men who are attempting to regain power through the election of Horace Greeley, speaks in this wise:

The overthrow of this Greeley conspiracy is a matter of more consequence to the tranquility of the country and the stability of its institutions than any mere party triumph. He is a weak and vacillating man; he is in the hands of corrupt and unprincipled managers; the worst elements of secession and rebellion, made rancorous by defeat, offer him the bribe of power as the price of his subserviency, and were Grant ten times the nepotist and present-taker that he is, his re-election would be infinitely safer for the country than the choice of Greeley. We are satisfied that sensible men of the Democratic party will take this view of the subject when they come to realize the iniquity of this plot against the peace and welfare of the Union.

It may seem unaccountable to some that the first reports we received of the North Carolina election were so wide of truth. But this will be explained when it is stated that our news is chiefly that of the Western Associated Press, which is made up mainly in the interest of a leading paper, the Chicago Tribune. The Tribune is "red-hot" for Greeley. Very much of the news that we receive takes its color from the preferences of that paper, which, as stated before, controls the Western Associated Press. How people are "sold" by such journalism is instanced notably in the case of the North Carolina election.

Closed out,—the Herald's "specials." The able-bodied news-editor of that establishment has labored hard to get up those "specials," He has called spirits from the vasty deep, and called again. But none have come, and North Carolina stands Republican and is sure for Grant.

Yesterday's East Portland Era, though printed after the result in North Carolina was fully known, still obtains a Democratic victory. If the Era's idea is to make a newspaper, it certainly has a very singular way of carrying that idea into execution.

OREGON.

Two young girls raised $112 in Jacksonville the other day for a Sunday School library.

The assessment roll of Union county shows a valuation of property amounting to $988,318.

Five hundred thousand brick have been used in the first story of the new court house at Salem.

Farmers of Washington county refuse to take 55 cents for wheat delivered at stations. The grain threshes well, and is unusually plump and large.

There is a contest at Salem for the position of Chief Engineer of the Fire Department. The Council can't decide which one of the contestants is elected, and tells the boys they must pull straws for it.

Hon. Owens, C. E. Cheshman and A. A. Smith have organized the "Reform" party at Eugene. Let no one throw a straw in the way of the efforts of these men to "reform." They have begun a necessary work and should have encouragement.

A call is issued at Eugene for a meeting to be held on the 10th instant, to organize a Grant Club. Good speakers will address the meeting. A letter from Lane County assures us that Grant's majority in November will exceed Wilson's last June.

One P. C. Sullivan, who imagines that he has been wronged by Attorney General Williams, which is perfectly absurd, since Williams has always been utterly oblivious of Sullivan's existence and never thought himself called on to notice him, delivered a harangue at Salem on Wednesday evening, in which he tried to make it appear again that Williams had done something to him which never could be pardoned. This is what Sullivan calls the "Liberal" canvas.

THE TERRITORIES.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company are selling blocks at the terminus near Olympia.

Two tons of china and fine furs have been shipped from Olympia by the Cowlitz for Portland.

John Faust, living on the Snohomish river, near Seattle, was killed a few days since by a block of wood which fell on his head.

Several steamboats have been fitted up on Puget Sound for non-compliance with the steamboat law. Among them are the Zephyr, Chehalis and Comet.

Rev. Mr. Wells writes to the Oregon Churchman as follows concerning the school he is about to open in Walla Walla: "I have just had a letter from our music teacher, saying she will come. She sends first class references, both from her pastor and heads of schools who are musicians. My housekeeper is engaged for the boarding department, a dwelling leased for one year, and the school is advertised to begin on the 17th of September. Our school-house is a nice building, and one of the most substantial wooden structures in the town. It will seat, all seated and painted, and supplied with blackboards all around the room, $2,500. The upper room has an arched ceiling, and we are using it for the service of the church. The lumber for the church building is on and ready to be properly dry, and we will try to have the church ready for occupancy by the first of November."

Speaking of the North Carolina election the Raleigh Standard says: "Before the election, it was known that as much as a quarter of a million of dollars were sent to influence votes from Washington City, and that two thousand negro votes from South Carolina, one thousand from Virginia and fifteen hundred from Maryland, making in all six or eight thousand, were imported into the State." What's the use of such bare-faced assertions? Nothing of the sort was "proven." It was never even charged by any respectable person.

The Morrisania (N. Y.) Journal, a Democratic paper, has come out for Grant.

WASHINGTON COUNTY.

THE INSTITUTION AT FOREST GROVE—NEW BUILDING AND REPUTATION.

FOREST GROVE, Aug. 8, 1872.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Pacific has always been the plan of the founders and supporters of the Pacific University at Forest Grove to make it a school for this region. With this purpose in view, they have steadily labored, and their efforts have been crowned by appropriate success. Around these and those in the early days of the institution, influences have grown up, which not only have their effect in this vicinity, but extend abroad. The single consideration, the institution is a pledge to the public that its work will continue. Pacific University is no experiment. After twenty years of successful effort, it is a great fact.

But a need is felt, and strongly felt, which we trust will soon be supplied. The buildings are no longer suited to the accommodation of the University. A plan is proposed to supply this want, a plan which is at once economical and beautiful. The two principal buildings are to be raised by the addition of high mansard roofs, towers are to be added, and complete changes made in their interior arrangement. The plan proposed will require about $10,000. A portion of this is to be raised by sale of scholarships and lands, but a balance of about $5,000 will be left to be made up by subscriptions.

It is hoped that this enterprise will receive favorable consideration at the hands of those who perceive the need of building up our leading educational institutions and placing them on such a footing as will enable them to exercise the greatest influence for good.

S.

POLITICAL NOTES.

In the Chicago Board of Trade a vote was taken the other day. Grant had 95 votes, and Greeley 34.

The next State to hold an election is Vermont. The election will occur September 3d. Maine will follow, September 9th.

The Chicago Times (Dem.) publishes a vast number of letters from Democrats who approve its course of opposition to Greeley.

In Wellsville, New York, the Grant Club now have on their rolls 225 names. The largest Republican vote ever polled in the town was 161.

Having been beaten in North Carolina, Democrats fall back on the old story of "frauds." We are willing they shall sing that song to their hearts' content.

Horace Greeley has well replied to the slanderers of Grant. "The people know General Grant. They do not know and do not care to know his calumniators."

John M. Todd, member of the "Liberal Republican" State Central Committee of California, has resigned, as he intends to vote for Grant. In a long letter he gives his reasons for withdrawal.

In the city of Binghamton, New York, the Grant Club has on its rolls 1,435 signers. Last year, when the Republicans carried the State by 18,000 majority, the total Republican vote of Binghamton was 1,255.

Senator Schurz announces his determination "not to go to the Democratic camp." We are sorry for that. We should like to see that camp broken up, and it is a well known fact that no party ever got along without serious disturbances after the arrival of Mr. Schurz.

Again the Herald is out with a "special." This last one purports to be from Washington, and assures the too confiding Democracy that they have a majority of one thousand in North Carolina. Still coming down. Twenty, ten, two, one. By to-morrow our neighbor will learn that the Republicans have the State by a handsome majority.

Horace Greeley as a Demagogue.

[From the Boston Commonwealth, July 27.]

That Horace Greeley has eaten of the insane root is more and more manifest as the Presidential canvass proceeds. It is conspicuously shown in his conversation with friends, but more in the voluminous correspondence which he is showering upon the community. Not content with expressing his views elaborately in response to the Cincinnati nomination—in which he reconstructed the platform of that convention to his own ideas—he has now re-enforced his statements by still more elaborate letters, one to Carl Shurz on civil-service reform, and another to Jim Doolittle, President of the Democratic Convention, still further declaring his complete abnegation of the issues of the Republican party, and his conviction that every unrepentant rebel should be unmuzzled in order that our fraternal hands should be stretched across "the bloody chasm," of which, just now, he has so vivid a realization. A more demagogical letter than the latter never was written by a man possessed, as by a demon, for office.

> I have a profound regard for the people of that New England wherein I was born, in whose common schools I was taught. I rank no other people above them in intelligence, capacity and moral worth, but while they do many things well, and some things admirably, there is one thing which I am sure they cannot wisely or safely undertake, and that is the selection, for States remote from and unlike their own, of the persons by whom those States shall be represented in Congress. If they could do this in good purpose, then republican institutions were unfit, and aristocracy the only true political system. Yet what have we recently witnessed? Zebulon B. Vance, the unquestioned choice of a large majority of the present Legislature of North Carolina, a majority backed by a majority of the people who voted at its election, denied the seat in the Federal Senate to which he was fairly chosen, and the Legislature thus constrained to choose another in his stead, or leave the State unrepresented for years. The votes of New England thus deprived North Carolina of the Senator of her choice and compelled her to send another, who in our late contest was, like Gov. Vance, a rebel, and a fighting rebel, but who had not served in Congress before the war, as Vance had, though the latter remained faithful to the Union all the close of his term. I protest against this disenfranchisement of a State, presumptively of a number of States, on grounds so narrow and technical as this. That the same Senate which refused Gov. Vance his seat proceeded to remove his disabilities after that seat had been filled by another, only serves to place in a stronger light the indignity to North Carolina and the arbitrary, capricious tyranny which dictated it.

There never was an adroiter purpose to cater to the prejudices of a party and sections of country than this. First, in appealing to the Democratic organization in behalf of an old associate, distranchised for his disloyalty; and, second, in perpetuating a bias against New England because of its political power from its subdivision into comparatively small States. Both show the utterly contemptible and truckling spirit with which Greeley is filled in his ambition. His allusion to New England's vote in the Senate is a repetition of an objection as old as the government. He shoots, it is true, burnt powder, but the charge is as disagreeable as ever. For a New Englander born thus to decry his native section makes his offense only the more reprehensible. It was long ago settled, even in the convention that framed the constitution, that there could be no union unless the colonial sovereignties, intact, as they were limited, or as they were expanded, by geographical boundaries, were admitted on equal terms. Rhode Island would no more surrender its independence and territory than Delaware. What had come from accidental causes in the first settlement of the country, must be perpetuated; if it was the fortune of Virginia and New York, from a sparser population or differing patent, to occupy more space than the New England settlements, the matter of land possession should not outweigh political organization and efficient government. Hence the union on equal terms, regardless of State limits. None knew this better than Horace Greeley. None know better than he that in all the restless recognitions of the influence of New England in the national councils from time to time, by the larger or newer States, there never has been, and there never can be, any other answer than that the fact must be accepted as part of the agreement on which our national union was established. Why, then, join with the enemies of New England principles and policy in continuing a prejudice against her because of her political power? Only because he was a disgusting demagogue, long known to be half fool, and now suspected of being fully knave.

But who is Mr. Zebulon B. Vance, for whom Mr. Horace Greeley has such sympathy? He unquestionably served out his term in Congress, ending it as the war began, but he was in the confidence of the plotters of the rebellion. He was at once elected Governor of North Carolina, and did all that he could in that position to "fire the Southern heart" and promote the success of the rebellion. His speeches were as [illegible] discharged with murderous intent against the Union as any that fell from traitorous lips. His treatment of Union soldiers that fell into his hands were as contemptuous and cruel as could be imagined from a bitter and vindictive disloyalist. Throughout his service as Governor he was known as an unrelenting foe to our nationality and peace. This is the man whom Horace Greeley singles out for mention that he may gain Southern sympathy and support! This is the representative of the "few hundred elderly gentlemen" whom he would receive again into the embraces of a generous and loving people who gave their best blood to thwart their machinations and preserve the integrity of the country! It may be that a few sentimentalists may see a sublime picture in this fraternity with perjured disunionists. But we trust the cool, sober, well-balanced judgment of the mass of the loyal people of this country to consign such plotters of treason to merited political oblivion, and to rebuke, as never before, the cringing manipulator who would rise to power by affecting to forget and forgive the crimes of those who drenched their land in fratricidal blood.

Falsehoods Refuted.

A New York dispatch of the 27th ult., gives the following:

W. A. Croffut, of the Evening Post, has received a letter from Secretary Boutwell, replying to charges of fraud against the Judiciary Fund of the Treasury Department by Congressman Beck of Kentucky, in a letter to Hon. P. L. Clingman, of North Carolina. Mr. Beck's charge was that he visited the Treasury Department, and found that S. T. Carrew, United States Marshal, of North Carolina, had drawn within the year $323,000, of which $65,000 had been drawn within sixty days and $40,000 within a few weeks. Beck assumed that this was to be used for corruption. Secretary Boutwell indorses a special report of Controller Taylor that Beck's statement was wholly false, showing that the misappreciation of the Judiciary Fund is impossible; that of $70,000 advanced to Carrow, vouchers had been returned for $67,000, and that very little money is ever left in a Marshal's hands, even for necessary expenses. In reply to Beck's further statement that a fellow named N. A. Britton, Marshal in Arkansas, had recently become a defaulter to the amount of $121,000, and Government had ample proof to convict him, but failed to prosecute, Secretary Boutwell says Britton was not a defaulter, but settled his accounts by receiving money due him from the Government. Boutwell's refutation of Beck's assertion is complete.

Remarkable Cure of Mr. Abram Tully

SAN JOSE, August 2, 1871.

DR. A. M. LORENZ & CO.—Some two years since I was taken down with inflammatory Rheumatism, and was for some time treated by two physicians, but got no better. I tried nearly every remedy I heard of, but nothing seemed to do me any good, until about two weeks ago I was advised by Judge J. Johnson to try your BSK WEED REMEDY. I procured one bottle and was entirely cured. For six weeks before taking the BSK I was compelled to go upon crutches. I consider your remedy a great blessing to suffering humanity, and shall direct it my study to inform all Rheumatics of its great virtues. Yours, &c.

FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 9 1872

North Carolina

At last it is settled that North Carolina has gone Republican on the popular vote the majority being nine hundred and fifty odd and the Legislature is Democratic

The returns of the Democratic journals of 1870 and the action of Governor Holden in striking out all the very opportunity to dispute the legality of murder that have but fallen into the trapping that was going to have me carry on rich to victory The Republicans triumph in North Carolina assures that State to Grant and Wilson, and presages a like result in six or seven other Southern States

By the victory in North Carolina the fight for the remainder of the campaign will be made easier It is a severe blow to the Greeley faction and lets the wind out of their inflated efforts to carry the day by a campaign of boasting and brag Of course, their organs will continue to assert that Greeley's election is sure, and day after day they will give us stories of men in Buckram who have left the Republicans and joined the Greeley ranks, but this will be harmless employment and in a short time all the illusions which it nourishes will be dissolved

H. W. B.

Greeley and Lincoln.

It may not be generally known that in the second Lincoln campaign Greeley was one of Lincoln's opponents, tried to get him off the ticket after he was nominated, and never advocated his election till his success was assured beyond a doubt Yet such is the fact Mr Lincoln's nomination in 1864 Greeley tried to go up a third party to secure his defeat To bring this about he addressed the following letter to the Governors of loyal States It caused much comment at the time

NEW YORK, Sept 2d, 1864

MY DEAR EXCELLENCY: The undersigned have requested by a body of influential Unionists unacquainted with the loyal Governors, for the purpose of eliciting replies to the following inquiries

Is your judgment, is the re-election of Mr Lincoln a probability?

Is your judgment can your own State be carried for Mr Lincoln? And if the interests of the Union party, and if so of the country, require the substitution of another candidate in the place of Mr Lincoln?

In making the queries we give no opinion of our own and request yours only for the most private and confidential use

Yours truly, HORACE GREELEY,
Editor of the Tribune (and two others)

The responses to this circular were contrary to Greeley's hopes. The loyal masses of the country stood by Lincoln But Greeley could not see the solid grounds for popular confidence in him He is now making a similar mistake in regard to Grant In 1864 Greeley was willing to risk the overthrow of the Republican party, and the consequent peril of the country, for trivial or else for unworthy, motives He is equally ready now.

There is another fact It will be remembered that in 1864 Greeley importuned Lincoln to let him go to Canada to negotiate with Confederate agents as to terms of peace. These agents were Jacob Thompson, Clement C Clay and George N Saunders The negotiation came to nothing, as Mr Lincoln had known But it appears from the Confederate archives, just published, that these same Thompson, Clay and Saunders, were at every time organizing schemes of insurrection throughout the Northern States, and working with all their energy to alienate the country from Lincoln and cause his defeat Defeat of Lincoln they held would be but a great Confederate victory, and correspondence which they solicited and Greeley urged Lincoln to grant, was but the preliminary to making the North sick of the war and for contributing to the defeat of the Administration in the election

It thus appears that Greeley was working with Lincoln at the very time when the Confederate Government and its agents in Canada were also putting forth special efforts to defeat him, under the conviction that such result, if it could be brought about, would give immense advantage to their cause. While we do not follow, and while we would not that Greeley was knowingly and intentionally playing into the hands of these men by thus betraying his country, yet it does seem that his conduct at that time, in opposing and attempting to organize a party to beat him after he was nominated was not such as to commend him to the American people as a man to whom the destinies of the country should now be intrusted as he is now seeking the Presidency Is it prudent to elevate to that position a man whose schemes would have ruined the country had they not been checked?

Greeley's Scenes on Record

We hear that in several parts of Oregon Greeley's supporters are denying that the great Chapy squack ever advocated secession But here is the proof in an extract which appeared over the signature of "H G" in the New York Tribune of January 21, 1861

As to secession I have repeatedly said, and I now repeat, that if the people of the slave States or the cotton States alone, really wish to get out of the Union, I am in favor of letting them out, as soon as their result can be peacefully and constitutionally attained But their case cannot be made out, and it is to require that the President and Republican party should prepare themselves in advance to its requirements If they will only be patient and refrain to seize Federal forts, or create, and submissions, but take no deliberately, a fair vote by ballot of their own citizens, none being coerced or put in duress, and the vote shall indicate a settled resolve to get out of the Union, I will do all I can to help them out at an early day

Foiled in one direction in their assertions that Grant is "cottage by the sea was given him by Thomas Murphy, the opposition press now take another course The Herald now copies from Eastern papers a story that A T Stewart is raised to subscribe $5 000 for the purchase of the house at Long Branch and that when he saw the paper there were eight subscribers to it This is simply an amended slander an invention of malice and mendacity, and in every particular as false as any predecessor One month of the Herald work with great facility in publishing all the unfounded lies which are fabricated by conductors in all parts of the country

All over the East Grant Clubs and Committees are forming congratulatory addresses and flocking in numbers to the victory" in North Carolina Not that the State is known to be Republican by a decided majority, the disappointment of the Greeleyites is as bitter as their former election was excessive

When Henry Ward Beecher in 1868 expressed doubts as to the wisdom of impeaching Andrew Johnson Horace Greeley thus went for him in the Tribune

Mr Beecher has achieved a sudden and complete popularity In the exception of Greeley [illegible] duelist negro hater and rowdy from the St John to the Rio Grande he has at once ceased to be a faction a disunionist and become an enlightened and patriotic statesman The old motto still holds good "Keep yourselves from idols" Whatever else the people may do, they have always been very apt to [illegible] Around Lincoln gathered [illegible] Around Seward gathered [illegible] Around Chase have gathered [illegible] Around Greeley have gathered [illegible] Just these examples of Pygmies have been exalted into Giants [illegible] men are apt to overlook that these idols are but men, and [illegible] Little children, keep yourselves from idols"

What better portrayal of Greeley himself could anybody now ask for than this? In the conception of every blackleg duelist, negro hater and rowdy, from the St John to the Rio Grande, he has, all at once, ceased to be a fanatic, a bigot, a disunionist and become 'an enlightened and patriotic statesman,' and has been honored with a nomination for the Presidency by the united voice of men of the disreputable classes specified The Thugs of New Orleans, in the person of Warmouth, attended the Convention that gave him the nomination, and the organs of Ku Kluxism all over the South are loud in their praises of Greeley—no longer a fanatic and bigot, but 'an enlightened and patriotic statesman,'

An Independent View

The Boston Globe, an influential newspaper which discusses political matters from an independent standpoint, after commandering in strong terms upon the outrageous falsehoods and corrupt means resorted to by the unprincipled men who are attempting to regain power through the election of Horace Greeley, speaks in this wise

The overthrow of this Greeley conspiracy is a matter of more consequence to the tranquility of the country and the stability of its institutions than any mere party triumph He is a weak, and vacillating man, he is in the hands of corrupt and unprincipled managers, the worst elements of secession and rebellion, made rancorous by defeat, offer him the balance of power as the price of his subserviency, and were Grant ten times the nepotist and present taker that he is, his re election would be infinitely safer for the country than the choice of Greeley We are satisfied that sensible men of the Democratic party will take this view of the subject when they come to realize the iniquity of this plot against the peace and welfare of the Union.

It may seem unaccountable to some that the first reports we received of the North Carolina election were so wide of truth But this will be explained when it is stated that our news is chiefly that of the Western Associated Press, which is made up mainly in the interest of a leading paper, the Chicago Tribune The Tribune is "red hot" for Greeley Very much of the news that we receive has its color from the preferences of that paper, which, as stated before, controls the Western Associated Press How people are "sold" by such journalism is instanced notably in the case of the North Carolina election

Closed out,—the Herald's "specials" The able-bodied news editor of that establishment has labored hard to get up those "specials" He has called spirits from the vasty deep, and called again But none have come, and North Carolina stands Republican and is sure for Grant

Yesterday's East Portland Era, though printed after the result in North Carolina was fully known, still claims a Democratic victory. If the Era's idea is to make a newspaper, it certainly has a very singular way of carrying that idea into execution

Hon Owens, C E Cheleman and A. A Smith have organized the "Reform" party at Eugene Let no one throw a straw in the way of the efforts of these men to "reform" They have begun a necessary work and should have encouragement

A call is issued at Eugene for a meeting to be held on the 10th instant, to organize a Grant Club Good speakers will address the meeting A letter from Lane County says of us that Grant's majority in November will exceed Wilson's last June

One P C Sullivan, who imagines that he has been wronged by Attorney General Williams, which is perfectly absurd, since Williams has always been utterly oblivious of Sullivan's existence and never thought himself called on to notice him, delivered a harangue at Salem on Wednesday evening in which he tried to make it appear again that Williams had done something with which he ought to be personally This is what Sullivan calls the Liberal cause

Speaking of the North Carolina election the Lancaster (Pa) Intelligencer says before the election it was hard to find better than a quarter of a million of dollars were sent to influence votes from Washington City and that two thousand negro votes from South Carolina one thousand from Virginia and fifteen hundred from Maryland, making in all nearly 4 500 were imported into the State What's the use of such base fraud as this? Nothing of the sort was "proven" It was never even charged by any respectable person

The Morrisania (N Y) Journal, a Democratic paper, has come out for Grant.

WASHINGTON COUNTY

THE INSTITUTION AT FOREST GROVE—PACIFIC UNIVERSITY AND ITS FUTURE

FOREST GROVE, Aug 8 1872

EDITOR OREGONIAN

I see it has always been the plan of the leaders and supporters of the Pacific University at Forest Grove to make it a nursery for this region With the purpose in view they have steadily labored and the result has always been a good one Around Legislative halls and at political conventions they have gathered influence which not only have them office in the vicinity but have given the institution a reputation and a patronage extended abroad The trustees and friends of the institution in a recent meeting pledged to the public that its work will continue Pacific University is no experiment After twenty years of successful effort, it is a great fact

But a need is felt and strongly felt which we trust will soon be supplied The buildings are no longer suited to the accommodation of the University A plan is proposed to supply this want, a plan which is at once economical and beautiful The two principal buildings are to be raised by the addition of high mansard roofs, to vers are to be added and complete changes made in their interior arrangement The plan proposed will require about $10 000. A portion of this is to be raised by sale of scholarships and lands, but a balance of about $5 000 will be left to be made up by subscriptions

It is hoped that this enterprise will receive favorable consideration at the hands of those who perceive the need of building up our leading educational institutions and placing them on such a footing as will enable them to exercise the greatest influence for good

POLITICAL NOTES

In the Chicago Board of Trade a vote was taken the other day Grant had 90 votes, and Greeley 31

The next State to hold an election is Vermont. The election will occur September 3d Maine will follow September 9th.

The Chicago Times (Dem.) publishes a vast number of letters from Democrats who approve its course of opposition to Greeley.

In Wellsville, New York, the Grant Club now have on their rolls 625 names The largest Republican vote ever polled in the town was 494

Having been beaten in North Carolina, Democrats fall back on the old story of "frauds" We are willing they shall sing that song to their hearts' content

Horace Greeley has well replied to the slanderers of Grant "The people know General Grant They do not know and do not care to know his calumniators"

John M Todd, member of the "Liberal Republican" State Central Committee of California, has resigned, as he intends to vote for Grant In a long letter he gives his reasons for withdrawal

In the city of Binghamton, New York, the Grant Club has on its rolls 1,425 signers Last year, when the Republicans carried the State by 18 000 majority, the total Republican vote of Binghamton was 1,208

Senator Schurz announces his determination "not to go to the Democratic camp" We are sorry for that We should like to see that camp broken up, and it is a well known fact that no party ever got along without serious disturbances after the arrival of Mr Schurz

Again the Herald is out with a "special" This last one purports to be from Washington, and assures the too confiding Democracy that they have a majority of one thousand in North Carolina Still coming down Twenty, ten, two, one By to-morrow our neighbor will learn that the Republicans have the State by a handsome majority.

Horace Greeley as a Demagogue

[From the Boston Commonwealth, July 27]

That Horace Greeley has eaten of the insane root is more and more manifest as the Presidential canvass proceeds. It is conspicuously shown in his conversation with friends, but more in the voluminous correspondence which he is showering upon the community Not content with expressing his views elaborately in response to the Cincinnati nomination—in which he reconstructed the platform of that convention to his own ideas—he has now re enforced his statements by still more elaborate letters, one to Carl Shurz on civil service reform, and another to Jim Doolittle, President of the Democratic Convention, still further declaring his complete abnegation of the issues of the Republican party, and his conviction that every unrepentant rebel should be amnestied in order that our fraternal hands should be stretched across "the bloody chasm," of which, just now, he has so vivid a realization. A more demagogical letter than the latter never was written by a man possessed, as by a demon, for office.

I have a profound regard for the people of that New England whereon I was born, in whose common schools I was taught I rank no other people above them in intelligence, capacity and moral worth, but while they do many things well, and some things admirably, there is one thing which I am sure they cannot wisely or safely overdo, and that is the selection, for blacks remote from and unlike their own, of the persons by whom those States shall be represented in Congress If they could do this to good purpose, then republican institutions were unfit and aristocracy the only true political system Yet what have we recently witnessed? Zebulon B Vance, the unquestioned choice of a large majority of the present Legislature of North Carolina, a majority backed by a majority of the people who voted at its election, denied the seat in the Federal Senate to which no was fairly chosen and the Legislature thus constrained to choose another in his stead, or leave the State unrepresented for years The votes of New England thus deprived North Carolina of the Senator of her choice and compelled her to send another, who in our late contest was, like Gov. Vance, a rebel, and a fighting rebel, but who had not served in Congress before the war, as Vance had, though the latter remained faithful to the Union till the close of his term I protest against this disfranchisement of a State, presumptively of a member of State, on grounds so narrow and technical as this That the same Senate which refused Gov Vance his seat proceeded to remove his disabilities after that seat had been filled by another, only serves to place in a stronger light the indignity to North Carolina and the arbitrary, capricious tyranny which dictated it

There never was an adroiter purpose to enter to the prejudices of a party and sections of country than this First, in appealing to the Democratic organization in behalf of an old associate, disfranchised for his disloyalty and second in perpetuating a bias against New England because of its political power from its subdivision into comparatively small States Both show the utterly contemptible and truckling spirit with which Greeley is filled in his ambition His allusion to New England's vote in the Senate is a repetition of an objection as old as the government. He shoots, it is true, blunt powder, but the stain is as disagreeable as ever For a New Englander born thus to decry his native section makes his offense only the more reprehensible. It was long ago settled, even in the convention that framed the constitution, that there could be no union unless the original sovereignties, intact, as they were limited, or as they were expanded by geographical boundaries, were admitted on equal terms Rhode Island would no more surrender its independence, and territory than Delaware What had come from accidental causes in the first settlement of this country must be perpetuated It it was the fortune of Virginia and New York, from a sparser population not differing, patent to occupy more space than the New England settlements the matter of land possession should not outweigh political organization and efficient government Hence two union on equal terms regardless of State limits None know this better than Horace Greeley None know better than he that in all the restless recognitions of the influence of New England in the national councils from time to time by the larger or newer States there never has been, and there never can be, any other answer than that the fact must be accepted as part of the agreement on which our national union was established. Why then join with the enemies of New England principles and policy in contumning a prejudice against her because of her political power? Only because he was a disgusting demagogue, long known to be half fool, and now suspected of being fully knave
